Recently, Tan Huynh provided a full day of rich professional development for teachers who work with English language learners in our district.

Tan's presentation style was warm and engaging. He based all assertions in current research and empirical evidence which added weight to his messaging. He easily engaged the teachers in reflective practice while modeling the strategies known to develop literacy skills for all students, especially language learners. The teachers were active in collaboration and reflection throughout the day. Tan's presentation style included many visuals, and his interesting infographics helped to clarify the information. We all left the session feeling energized and empowered to support students with easy to implement strategies the next day.

Many teachers remarked to me that the day spent with Tan was the best professional development session they had in their career. Tan is an engaging teacher who leads from the heart. His passion for the students he works with is evident as he shares his knowledge and expertise with colleagues around the world. I highly recommend Tan as a facilitator for professional learning in the area of promoting literacy across content and for all educators who have language learners in their classes.
